

Essential Question

How might you describe the solar system to a friend who knows nothing about the relative sizes of the sun and planets or the distances between them?