

A

Analyze: to examine or think about something carefully, in order to understand it

Apply: to use what you have learned for some purpose

Appraise: to judge how successful, effective, or valuable something is

Assess: to make a judgment about someone or something after thinking carefully about it

C

Calculate: to figure out an answer using numbers or facts

Categorize: to put people or things into groups based on some sort of shared (or common) trait or quality

Classify: to decide what group something belongs to

Collect: to bring different objects or pieces of information together in one place

Combine: to put two or more things together in such a way that they exist and work together

Compare: to examine or explain how things are alike or different

Compile: to make something by collecting or bringing together different objects or pieces of information

Compose: to organize or combine pieces of information together into a written product or an illustration

Contrast: to observe two or more things and explain how different they are from each other

Convert: to change something into a different form of thing, or to change it so that it can be used for a different purpose or in a different way

Create: to make something new, to invent something

Criticize: to explain the good and bad qualities of a person, object or idea

D

Deduce: to use the information you have to figure out something new or understand something better

Defend: to explain why a particular idea or point of view is right

Define: to describe something correctly and thoroughly, and to explain how it is different from other things

Demonstrate: to show how to do something; to show or prove something

Design: to make a drawing or plan of something that will be made or built

Devise: to figure out a new way to do something

Diagram: to draw a picture that shows the parts of something or how something works

Differentiate: to explain how two or more things are different

Discover: to find or learn something you did not know about before

Distinguish: to see and understand how two or more things are different

E

Estimate: to make a good guess that is close to the actual number, size, speed, etc... of something

Evaluate: to judge or decide how good, useful, or successful something is

Examine: to look at something carefully and thoroughly to learn more about it

Experiment: to use different ideas or methods to see how well they work; to do a scientific test to see if an idea will work or to get more information

H

Hypothesize: to make a good guess about something that has not yet proven to be true

I

Identify: to correctly name something or someone; to recognize or discover something

Illustrate: to draw a picture; to explain something by giving examples

Inspect: to look at something carefully to find out more about it, to make sure it is working properly or is of good enough quality

Interpret: to explain the meaning of something

J

Judge: to form an opinion on how useful or valuable something is or whether it is right or wrong

Justify: to give reasons why an idea or opinion is correct

L

Label: to write information on a picture or diagram

List: to write things one after another

M

Manipulate: to touch or change something in order to understand it better or to see how it works

Measure: to use standard units (meters, grams, etc..) to find out how long, heavy, etc...something is

Modify: to make small changes to something to improve it

O

Organize: to arrange information or objects in a particular order

P

Paraphrase: to retell something using different words or in a shorter way

Plan: to think carefully about how something you want to do and decide how and when you will do it

Predict: to make a guess about what will happen in the future, before it happens

Q

Quote: to repeat exactly what someone else has said or written

R

Rate: to judge how good or valuable something is

Recall: to remember a person, event or fact

Recognize: to know someone or something because you saw, heard, or learned it in the past

Record: to write down, film, or store in a computer, information or measurements for future use

Relate: to tell about an event or to explain how two things are connected

Report: to tell someone information or what has been happening

Revise: to make changes based on new information or ideas

S

Score: to use numbers to judge how good or valuable something is

Select: to choose carefully

Solve: to find a way to deal with a problem

State: to formally write or say an opinion or information

Summarize: to briefly explain the most important information but not the details

Support: to present proof or evidence to show your opinions or ideas are correct

V

Value: to figure out how much something is worth by comparing it with similar things

Visualize: to form a picture of something in your mind